

Vocabulary /və'kæbjələri/

a , about , all , an, and

Let's begin with a . We use a before things. For example: a bird ,a dog, or in the sentence/'sɛntəns/ : "I see a bird".

Next we have about . When do we use about? We use about when we think about ideas. For example : We can say this story is about a bird or What is this book about?

Next we have all . All means everything. We use all to describe/dɪ'skraɪb/ everything like : I have all the books or all of us like football/'fʊtbɔl/.

Next we have an . Do you remember a . We use a in front of nouns/naʊn/ or things . But we use an when the thing starts with a vowel/'vaʊəl/ sound/saʊnd/. Vowel a, e, y, o, u . When the thing starts with the vowel sound we say an . For example: I need an umbrella/ʌm'brɛlə/.

Finally, we have and . We use and when we have more than one thing. If we have two things we can use and . For example: I buy milk/mɪlk/ and bread/brɛd/.
